

Final new draft of Uneeka's Unique Products page from their About Us section

Unique Products

Uneeka is not about dreams, but actions. We see the people of this world and its environment, from Nepal to Peru, as equal causes that both need to be nurtured and fairly supported. So here at Uneeka, amongst the kaleidoscopic medley of our unique products, we hold onto this ethos of improving the world around us through a business that shows that fair trade can work for both people and the environment.

We pay a fair price to the craftsmen and craftswomen that create the products that we sell. If you delve into our website or venture into one of our stores, you'll soon come to learn that being fair trade doesn't mean indistinct or unoriginal pieces. Uneeka is about distinct, delightfully peculiar and affordable fair trade items that are contemporary, innovative and desirable too.

Unique Products

We're an eclectic bunch at Uneeka (the clues in the name!) and we pride ourselves on sourcing the most innovative and interesting products from recognised and affiliated organisations from all over the world.

We're always on the look out for new and exciting, contemporary fairly traded products and where possible try to work directly with the producers themselves. In the past we've sold everything from baskets to musical instruments. This is due to the unique source and nature of our products. We continually work to expand and develop the range of products we have in-store and carefully source new products and suppliers using our strict ethical policy guidelines. We aim to sell products made from sustainable or recycled materials where possible and work with suppliers to ensure products are manufactured using production methods that do not damage their local environment.

Our producers are situated in countries all over the world from Nepal to Peru. Local artisans use traditional techniques and natural materials to handcraft the majority of our products making every item that little bit unique. There are never huge runs on certain lines and the best thing is you won't find a lot of our products out on the high street. We're really keen to spread the message that fair trade can be contemporary, innovative and desirable too.

Accredited with BAFTS (British Association of Fairtrade Shops), we work to improve the livelihoods and well being of producers by improving market access, strengthening producer organisations and paying a better price for our products. We also actively work to raise awareness among our customers of the negative effects on producers of international trade so that they exercise their purchasing power positively.

Our products are great even if we do say so ourselves and it's the stories behind our products that make everything we sell so damn good. From 3-day journeys to collect orders, to life saving employment projects. Our fair trade producers are all guaranteed an equal wage for the work they do. We wouldn't have it any other way!
