Listening to the people of Truro

Local campaigner Tom Stubbs realises that for too long, local people have been ignored in the development of Truro.

Tom knows that when it comes to local developments, local people are the ones who should have the biggest say, rather than central government policies dictating what should go where: "Truro does need green spaces and infrastructure, but it also needs local decision making when it comes to new development."

Making Truro Family Friendly

Tom Stubbs, 24, is campaigning for an increase in the services and facilities available to families, young people and children in the Truro area. He feels that there has been a lack of focus in the district councils and county council on the wants and needs of families, young people and children across the county.

Tom believes that no child in Truro should, "have to claim the streets as their playing field."
